

Upper Arizona Division State guide University

What is Barrett, The Honors College?

Barrett, The Honors College is a community of high-achieving scholars within Arizona State University who enjoy the considerable resources of a premier Research I university combined with the close, personal attention provided by the staff, faculty and deans of the highest-ranked honors college in the nation, according to PrepScholar.

Barrett students attend the best graduate schools, have exceptional success in national fellowship competitions, and accept positions with prominent nonprofit and Fortune 500 companies, becoming part of a wide and engaged alumni and employer network.

Regardless of their chosen degree program, students at any of ASU's four metro Phoenix campuses are eligible for admission to Barrett, The Honors College.

Student spotlight

"As a first-generation college student, Barrett gave me plenty of resources and opportunities that helped me navigate my college life and educational trajectory. Not only was I able to bond with other transfer students through Barrett's signature upper-division History of Ideas course, but I also gained hands-on research experiences and deeper connections with the faculty. This benefited me in my graduate school application and studies."

– Yishu L., ASU class of 2022

BA in Asian languages and BFA in art (painting)
Currently studying MA in art at Harvard.

Barrett is the "gold standard"
among the nation's honors colleges.

– The New York Times

Barrett breakdown

The Barrett Upper Division honors curriculum is designed for students who have completed approximately half of their undergraduate degree program and are looking to enroll in Barrett during the start of what is traditionally considered their third (junior) year. This upper-division option works particularly well for community college students coming to ASU with an earned associate degree.

To apply for Barrett Upper Division admission, the following criteria must be met:

1 Already completed:

A minimum of 54 credit hours recognized by Arizona State University.

- At least 30 of the 54 credits must have been earned after high school or homeschool graduation.
- Courses in progress at the time of Barrett application review will be counted toward the 54-credit minimum with the expectation that they will be successfully completed.

2 To complete as an ASU Upper Division student:

At least two years remaining at ASU. Students must have at least two academic years – 4 semesters, not including summer sessions – and approximately 60 credit hours remaining before intended ASU graduation at the time of Barrett enrollment.

#1

in the U.S. for innovation

ASU ahead of MIT and Stanford

- U.S. News & World Report

8 years, 2016-2023

The Barrett experience

Future plans of Barrett students

47%

Graduate or professional school

47%

Employment

6%

Volunteerism or other

Setting the gold standard

50

full-time professors in a variety of disciplines

68%

students graduate summa cum laude

26%

double major

Visit Barrett, The Honors College at any one of ASU's four metro Phoenix campuses.

barretthonors.asu.edu/visit barrettrecruitment@asu.edu

Connect with us:

@barretthonors

ASU Barrett
The Honors College
Arizona State University

Learn to thrive

Information is subject to change. ASU is an affirmative action/equal opportunity institution. ©2022 Arizona Board of Regents for ASU. Photo credits: Dominic Valente, FJ Gaylor, Jenny Dupuis. Oct. 2022 / 500 / 40582

